SEVENTH ANNUAL REPORT

The University of Miami School of Law's Center for Ethics & Public Service is pleased to publish its Seventh Annual Report celebrating the achievements of the 2002–2003 academic year. The Report describes the Center's mission, awards, leadership seminars, practice groups, and projects. Appendix A presents a compilation of Center donors since 1996. Appendix B contains a digest of Center workshops and symposia. Appendix C provides a survey of the private and public sector placements of Center graduates. Appendix D comprises an index of national and local media citations to the Center.

MISSION STATEMENT

Founded in 1996, the School of Law's Center for Ethics & Public Service is an interdisciplinary clinic devoted to the values of ethical judgment, professional responsibility, and public service in law and society. The Center provides training in ethics and professional values to the Law School and the University as well as to the Florida business, civic, education, and legal communities. The Center also provides health rights education and economic development training to low-income communities. Staffed by more than 50 law student fellows and interns under the supervision of Professor Anthony V. Alfieri, Deputy Director Karen P. Throckmorton, Senior Fellow Harriet Rubin Roberts, and Coordinator Cynthia S. McKenzie, the Center operates three practice groups and twelve projects in the fields of ethics education, professional training, and community service.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES

The Center observes three guiding principles in serving the cause of ethics, professional values, and public service in law and society. The first is the principle of interdisciplinary collaboration. The Center draws on the rich, cross-disciplinary resources of the University in developing joint curricular, research, and clinical practice ventures. The second is the principle of public-private partnership. The Center strives to reach out to both the private and nonprofit corporate community to establish partnerships in sponsoring civic education and community service programs. The third is the principle of student mentoring and leadership training. The Center seeks to train students for positions of leadership in law, private enterprise, and public service. Law student fellows and interns enroll in a two-semester clinical practicum and seminar for six academic credits. Additionally, they dedicate more than 15 hours per week to Center practice group and project activities. Participation and mentoring enable students to cultivate moral maturity and professional expertise, and moreover, to inspire other students to pursue the calling of public leadership as citizen lawyers.

UNIVERSITY JOINT VENTURES

The Center is dedicated to the development of university-wide interdisciplinary ethics and community service programs. Current programs include joint venture partnerships with five schools (Architecture, Communication, Education, Nursing, and Medicine), the College of Arts and Sciences (Departments of Philosophy, Political Science, and Religious Studies; Pre-Law Counseling; and the Honors Program), Varsity Athletics, and the University Division of Student Affairs. The partnerships afford opportunities for interdisciplinary teaching, curricular and clinical development, research, and community service.

COMMUNITY IMPACT

Since 1996, the Center has provided ethics education and training to over 7,000 members of the Florida community, including University of Miami undergraduate and graduate students, Miami-Dade County high school and middle school students and teachers, lawyers and judges, and civic leaders.

AWARDS

The Center is the recipient of numerous prestigious national, state, and local awards from the American Bar Association, the Florida Supreme Court, the Florida Bar, and the Miami-Dade County Commission on Ethics & Public Trust.

OMICRON DELTA KAPPA HONOR SOCIETY, UNIVERSITY OF MIAMI CIRCLE, 2002

---

<sup>4</sup> The Partnership Project has also collaborated with the Gulliver School (1999–2000), Belen Jesuit Preparatory School (Jan. 26, 1999), Coral Reef High School (Apr. 23, 1999), the Eleventh Judicial Circuit of Florida and the Miami-Dade County Public School Justice Teaching Institute (Apr. 30, 1999), and Ransom Everglades School (Feb. 22, 2002).

AT&T STUDENTS TEACHING STUDENTS, 2001 – 2003

The AT&T Students Teaching Students Project is an ethics and civic education program training public and private high school students to teach middle school students about ethics, character, values, and democratic citizenship through case studies, role-playing, and mock trials. At Miami Senior High School, Project fellows recruit and train students to teach at Citrus Grove Middle School in collaboration with high school and middle school teachers.

PRO BONO GROUP

The Pro Bono Group spearheads two University-wide interdisciplinary teaching, research, and community service projects: the Community Development and Design Project and the Community Health Rights Education Project.

COMMUNITY HEALTH RIGHTS EDUCATION, 2000 – 2003

The Community Health Rights Education Project (CHRE) is an interdisciplinary teaching, research, and community service program jointly sponsored by the University of Miami Schools of Law, Nursing (Professor JoNell Efantis-Potter, Director HIV Care and Treatment Program, Miami Family Care Program), and Medicine (Dr. Arturo Brito, Medical Director Pediatric Mobile Clinic, and Dr. Gwen Wurm, Medical Director Community Pediatrics). The goals of CHRE are four: first, to develop a teaching and curricular model for medical-legal education and training; second, to establish a clinical practice model for the delivery of medical-legal care to under-served populations; third, to conduct research on the medical-legal needs of under-served populations, especially minority families and children in poverty; and fourth, to provide health care rights education and self-help advocacy training to under-served populations at University-affiliated community clinics. Operating in cooperation with the School of Nursing's Health Centers at R.R. Moton and Beckford-Richmond Elementary Schools, the School of Law's Children & Youth Law Clinic, and the School of Medicine's Pediatric Mobile Clinic, CHRE offers educational information, self-help advocacy training, and referral services to individuals and groups regarding health care rights and entitlements under federal and state public benefits programs. The education and training regimens include a law student-conducted health benefit eligibility interview and investigation ("health rights check up") in consultation with supervising clinical faculty, a student-patient informational discussion of benefit eligibility and problem-solving approaches to ineligibility, and direct assistance to the patient by students and faculty through self-help advising and, when appropriate, advocacy. In the 2002-2003 academic year, CHRE advised patients in 83 cases.

COMMUNITY ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT AND DESIGN, 2000 – 2003

The Community Economic Development and Design Project (CEDAD) is an interdisciplinary teaching, research, and community service program jointly sponsored by the University of Miami Schools of Law and Architecture (Luce Professor Samina Quraeshi and Center for Urban and Community Design Director Richard Shepard) and supported by Greenberg Traurig. The goals of CEDAD are four: first, to develop a teaching and curricular model for transactional legal skills in urban economic development; second, to establish a clinical practice model for economic development assistance to low-income communities; third, to compile research assessing the economic development impact of government policies, banking and insurance practices, and private housing markets on low-income communities; and fourth, to provide economic development education and self-help advocacy training to low-income communities. See CEDAD: Community Economic Development and Design Project Report 2000 – 2002 (Sept. 2002). In the 2002-2003 academic year, CEDAD produced four studies addressing community land trusts, gentrification and displacement, vacant lot renewal, and zoning.
